JuLy 21 2022

Dear potential partner(s),

As you may know, the UNESCO Chair in Sexual Health & Human Rights is an organization with an international vocation bringing together physicians, psychologists, sexologists, sociologists, anthropologists, philosophers, jurists and lawyers. Its mission is to promote development and fulfillment in the world, well-being of individuals, couples and families and to innovate through education, training, research and communication.

In the last two years the UNESCO Chair had put together, alongside its team and its local experts, a certifying massive open online course, in French, under the name of “MOOC Rights, Sex & Education”.

This course is mainly designed to train (health, social, legal) professionals and help through their interventions in sexual health by giving them knowledge, soft skills, and know-hows. The course addresses topics, concerns and questions related to human rights and sexual health by linking the two subjects together.

The course is divided into 6 units and 42 sub-units focusing, amongst other things, on the national framework to sexual rights, the importance of sexual and reproductive rights and education for all at any age, the freedom of choice, gender-equality, and the tools, methods, and attitudes that professionals should use and adopt to enhance their interventions.

With a satisfaction rate of 93%, during four months in 2021, 4500 subscribers and more than 600 certifications for its French version, it is time to think big and take this training to another (international) level.

Today, our UNESCO Chair with the UNESCO EducationS & Health Chair of the University of Clermont Ferrand have been accredited to lead a UNITWIN network "Health & EducationS: Innovating for sustainable development". It is in this context that we invite you to participate and to co-create a international course on line : “MOOC Rights, Sexual health & EducationS”.
